Essay of BBM_Tita Muchlisha

The Risk of The Increasing Fuel Prices

The increasing fuel price has become the latest issue that most people talk about nowadays. The increasing¹ fuel price is a step for the Indonesian government to overcome the problem of world oil turmoil. However, this has created a burden that is felt² by the middle and lower classes of society. The impact of the increase in fuel prices will result in many things. Therefore, the government should maintain the lower fuel price as the increasing price can increase the prices of other essential commodities, increase the unemployment rate, and lead to higher inflation.

First, the rise of fuel prices can hike the price³ of other essential commodities, which is undoubtedly burdensome for the lower and middle classes who are still in the process of economic recovery after being affected by the Covid-19 pandemic. The rise of basic needs will decrease the purchasing power in the short term because the income effect has decreased⁴ in real terms. Especially the middle and lowest household groups who do not have sufficient space to deal with short-term cashflows problems.⁵ For example, my family has to restrict the electricity in the house, which impedes my study and requires me to stay in front of a laptop.⁶

Second, the increased unemployment rate is the destructive impact of the rising fuel price. The reason is that fuel is the primary material for the company's operation, and the high fuel price can burden production costs. For example, a company that works in delivering goods will consider production efficiency; the choice that the company must make is to stop the process of recruiting new employees. Moreover, if this continues, the company will be forced to terminate the employment relationship (PHK). This⁷ not only increases the unemployment rate but, in the worst case, will increase Indonesia's poverty rate three times higher than in September 2021 based on BPS data.

Last but not least, the hike in fuel prices has an enormous potential to increase inflation. According to World Bank, oil feeds into nearly everything, from food to smartphones. The price⁸ of oil influences food price movements. Also, the most extensive use of oil is transportation. Therefore, when fuel prices rise, all goods transported will lead to high inflation. And this has become my biggest problem because I have to spend more to buy the same quantity of products or services. For instance, while a box of chicken geek cost Rp. 10.000 in 2020, I have to pay Rp. 15.000 in 2022. It is just around two years, but the inflation has changed significantly.

In conclusion, I strongly agree that⁹ the fuel price increase hurts society. Since it also increases the basic need, unemployment rate, and inflation. Instead of increasing the price, I suggest focusing on limiting subsidized fuel. The most effective restriction on subsidized fuel¹⁰ now is for motorcycle and public transportation that has the right to use Pertalite and Solar. Also, the government should make a law about it. Therefore, everyone will take it seriously.

Technology for Academic Improvement	This paragraph is describing a student who is using the Grammarly application to improve the grammar in their written work. Grammarly is a tool that helps people to identify and fix errors in their writing. The student is using the application through Windows, Chrome, and Microsoft Word, as recommended by their professor at the start of their classes. This likely means that the professor has encouraged their students to use the Grammarly application to improve their writing. The student may be using the application to check for errors in spelling, punctuation, syntax, and grammar in their written assignments. The application may also provide suggestions on how to improve the overall quality and clarity of their writing. In addition, the application may highlight any potential plagiarism in the student's work. By using Grammarly, the student is taking proactive steps to ensure their written work is of the highest quality.

The person believes the feedback is wrong, but Grammarly says it is incorrect. The person often filters the results from Grammarly, especially when they are not in the mood to follow the corrections. The person believes that they do not need to change the text according to Grammarly's suggestions if they think it is already correct.	Inconsistency	This case is about a person who is having difficulty understanding the feedback they are receiving from Grammarly, a grammar-checking software. The individual is convinced that the feedback Grammarly provides is incorrect, even though Grammarly states it is indeed incorrect. In order to combat this, the individual often filters the results from Grammarly, especially when they are not in the mood to take the program's corrections into consideration. Furthermore, the individual believes that they do not need to change the text according to Grammarly's suggestions if they feel that it is already accurate and in line with what they intended. This individual is struggling to understand why Grammarly's feedback does not match up with their own perception of the text.

Sejauh ini saya belum mendapatkan kesalahan dalam feedback grammarly premium. Saya cukup merasa puas dengan feedback yang diberikan sehingga membantu saya meningkatkan kualitas penulisan saya. (P8)	Writing Improvement	Positive	This case is about a person's satisfaction with the feedback given by a Grammarly premium. The person has not found any faults in the feedback and is happy with how it has helped them improve their writing quality.	Satisfaction with Feedback	In this case, a person is expressing satisfaction with the feedback given by a Grammarly premium. They haven't found any faults in the feedback and are pleased with how it has enabled them to improve their writing quality. The overall theme of this paragraph is satisfaction with the feedback given, as it has proven to be helpful in improving the person's writing.

Grammarly is an online application created to help users improve their grammar and writing abilities. The person in this case does not keep track of how long it takes them to use the app, and only uploads documents 1-2 times. This indicates that the person is not a frequent user of the application. The student typically goes through their drafts two or four times for each proofreading session, which typically lasts one to two hours. This strategy saves them time as they estimate that it would take a full day to proofread the drafts if they did it all by themselves. The student is using a methodical process to ensure their work is free of errors before they submit it.

It proposes that instead of revising a document once, it should be revised up to two or three times. This will save time when compared to a single revision, as the estimated time spent on the task is estimated to be around 5 to 7 minutes. This method is beneficial as it can help to speed up the process of document revision by cutting

Saya biasanya melakukan 2-3 kali pengecekan untuk satu paragraf yang sama. Terkadang saat pengecekan pertama selesai saya merasa ada yang kurang dalam tulisan saya sehingga menambahnya lagi kemudian mengeceknya kembali. Saya bisa menghabiskan hanya beberapa menit saja dalam merevisi tulisan melalui grammarly, mungkin hanya 10 menit dan itu sangat mengefesienkan waktu saya ketimbang harus mengecek sendiri secara manual. (P4)	Editing, Revising, and Efficiency	Efficient	The case is that the person usually does 2-3 checks for the same paragraph. Sometimes after the first check is done, they feel like something is missing in their writing. Thus they add it and check it again. They can spend just a few minutes revising their writing through Grammarly, maybe just 10 minutes, which is very time efficient compared to manually checking it themselves.	Time efficiency & Revision	This paragraph is describing a person's process for checking their writing for accuracy and clarity. They typically do two to three checks for each paragraph, and after the first check, they may feel like something is missing. As a result, they add the missing information and check it again. To streamline the process, the person may use an automated program such as Grammarly to help them quickly revise their writing in just ten minutes, which is more efficient than manually checking it themselves.
